Dear friends,

Like Shakespeare and Polonius, we just have too much to tell you – so we added a third page to this month's journal. In this journal, we discuss our work on international trade; together my chief of staff and I visited both the Canadian and Mexican borders. We also have links to important election information. On that note, I'd like to take a minute and talk about one of the most important choices on the ballot, Proposition 1. The ballot language for the proposition reads:

"The constitutional amendment providing for the use and dedication of certain money transferred to the state highway fund to assist in the completion of transportation construction, maintenance, and rehabilitation projects, not to include toll roads." If passed by the voters in the next election, up to 50 percent of oil and gas tax revenue could be used to fund transportation projects in Texas.

Thank you for allowing me the privilege to serve you in the Texas House.

Canadian Border, Ports & Rail Tour

Last month my Chief of Staff, Amanda Alongne, attended a conference in Vancouver, BC focusing on U.S./Canadian Border Security and International trade. Canada is a valuable trade partner for Texas, and understanding our relationship is important to me as a member of the International Trade and Intergovernmental Affairs Committee.

Border Security

While there, Amanda met with Canadian Border Services Agency and toured several of the region's land, air and marine ports. She learned about enhanced techniques to detect drugs, explosives, agricultural hazards, child pornography and immigration violations. Intelligence and information is readily shared between Canadian Border Services and U.S. Customs and Border Patrol to reduce immigration fraud and ensure the safety of people and goods of both countries.

Trade

The U.S. and Canada have over $700 billion in bilateral trade in goods and services annually. Canada is the state of Texas's #2 export market, and Texas sold over $26 million worth of goods to Canadian companies last year including, petrol (continued on Page 2)

October Update On Mexico Border

Trading Opportunities with Mexico

In September, The House Committee on International Trade & Intergovernmental affairs held a joint public hearing with the House Committee on Natural Resources in Edinburg, Texas. As part of our interim charges we examined opportunities and innovations to increase international trade and investment in Texas. We reviewed state and federal regulations to determine what can be done to ease tariff and non-tariff barriers in order to maximize trade flow. We also studied options to improve the physical infrastructure that facilitates international trade, considering both state and local investment opportunities. Specifically, we looked at the new Oil & Gas privatization laws in Mexico and how both sides would benefit from these new initiatives.

Oil Privatization in Mexico

Historically in Mexico, oil & gas production, mineral rates and distribution have been under the ownership and management of the national oil company Petróleos Mexicano (PEMEX).

Under PEMEX, Mexico has seen oil production decline by nearly a third in the past decade. Recently, Mexico has begun the process of privatizing this sector. These changes will soon open 80 percent of prospective resources to competition, effectively ending the monopoly that began in 1934.

The Pharr International Bridge

Now available for investment, a swath of area cut up into "blocks" will be coming up to bid in the next year. Several domestic and international groups are expected to begin bidding to provide exploration, services, technology, and distribution. Most researchers expect a large amount of investment in the area; the number of jobs in Mexico could increase by over 500,000! The net result of this will be increased trading opportunities for Texas and Mexico. This could also have a positive side effect on our border security measures as Mexicans have less need to emigrate.

Pharr International Bridge

I met with local officials in the City of Pharr and toured the Pharr International Bridge. The Pharr-Reynosa International Bridge serves as one of the most important ports on entry for the U.S.-Mexico border. The bridge handles commercial vehicles as well as passenger-operated vehicles. Gamma Rays and the Fast And Secure Trade program are implemented on the bridge which allows for a safe and expedited inspection of documents and cargo, and limits crossing time on the U.S.-Mexican border. We reviewed current bottlenecks as multiple government agencies work together on inspecting and tracking import/export traffic. We hope that enacting certain changes can significantly improve cross-border trade.

Canadian Ports & Rail Cont'd

and LT oil, natural gas, civilian aircraft parts, and machinery for vehicles, gas drilling and electronics. Texas imported $14.6 million worth of goods from Canada last year, which included crude oil, cellular phones, telecommunication systems, television parts, petroleum, silver, and benzene.

Canada also provides the shortest direct route to Asia via ship. Amanda traveled to Prince Rupert, BC - an important port in Canada which provides Canada's most efficient bulk terminal and grain terminal as well as a container terminal that offers a high-velocity gateway for transpacific container trade with Asia. She met with the Port Authority and Border Services and watched cargo go through various types of inspections that detect counterfeit goods, drugs, weapons, and agricultural pests.

Since the 19th century, the United States has relied on railroads for transportation of goods. Amanda met with a number of rail companies to discuss safety standards and toured their operations at several ports including Delta Port (BNSF- Coal) and Port Metro Vancouver (CN & CP- Container). Rail has proved to be one of the key modes of transportation for not only moving goods across North America, but also moving goods to ports so they can be sold to other markets.

The relationship between the United States and Canada has allowed both countries to prosper through trade, while also maintaining a high level of security at the border and ports. I hope that through continued efforts, Texas can establish a similar relationship with Mexico.
